

Organisational membership 2022-23

We are an inclusive network of change makers from across public services and communities, who share a belief in the value of co-production and involvement, and who come together to inspire, empower and support one another.

Our individual membership is free forever: anyone with an interest can join without limitations of cost or permissions.

The organisational membership fees enable us to maintain and support this vibrant network of people, groups, teams and organisations who are making transformational co-production a reality in Wales. In exchange, as an organisational member you nominate your co-production champions, who can be staff members, volunteers, trustees, service users, and/or people who work in (or closely with) your organisation. The Co-production Network helps them to improve their co-production practice, develop it further across your teams, increase your impact as an organisation, and advance your strategic co-production and involvement aims.

Individual membership offers:	Organisational membership offers your champions all of this, plus:

Who is it for?

You can join as a team, as a department, or as a whole organisation. You can be from the statutory, non-profit, or academic sectors. You don't have to be based in Wales to benefit from being part of the community of practice; but we find that organisational membership works best for Wales-based organisations, or those working across UK nations who have teams and activities in Wales.

How does it work?

You choose the number of champions you want to nominate, to advocate for and support colleagues with co-production. Your membership fees are based on your number of champions.
